Trussbilt

WAYZATA, MINNESOTA, February 15, 2007 – Bayview Capital Group (“Bayview”) announced today that its client, Trussbilt, LLC (“Trussbilt”), has been acquired by Sentinel Capital Partners (“Sentinel”), a private equity firm based in New York. Participating with Sentinel in the acquisition were members of Trussbilt’s management team and principals of Bayview Capital Group.

Based in New Brighton, MN and founded in 1926, Trussbilt makes correctional facilities more secure and cost-effective by designing and building security products that set the standard for safety, reliability and innovation. Trussbilt is the only company in the detention industry that offers a complete line of steel doors, walls, frames, ceilings and other furnishings. The company’s patented design for metal door and wall construction uses a unique manufacturing process resulting in a thin, light steel panel of tremendous strength and durability.

“Correctional institutions across the country are well in excess of capacity and population of detainees is expected to grow by more than 13% over the next five years,” said Paul Murphy, partner at Sentinel. “The significant cost and space savings offered by Trussbilt products to its customers, and the company’s outstanding reputation for high product quality and reliability, position Trussbilt well to continue the market leadership role it has held for the last 80 years.”

“Since Trussbilt designed the Trusscore reinforced hollow door in 1926, the company has differentiated itself from competitors with superior technology,” said Timothy Browne, President of Trussbilt. “We have been impressed with Sentinel’s knowledge of our business and of the manufacturing sector, and we look forward to working with them to continue our drive for quality improvements and innovations in the manufacturing process.”

“Trussbilt has a seasoned management team in place to capitalize on the growth opportunities in the detention industry,” said Eric Bommer, partner at Sentinel. “We look forward to partnering with management and supporting the company’s talented and dedicated employees to provide the high quality products the detention construction industry has come to expect from the Trussbilt brand.”
